Mae Jemison

Reception enjoyed learning all about Mae Jemison, the first African American woman in space, during Black history Month.

We were inspired by her determination and discussed our dreams for the future.

We were very impressed that Mae Jemison was a scientist, a doctor and an astronaut but she still made time to watch her favourite TV show!

The children role played blasting off to space and wrote a list of all the things they would take with them.

We built rockets in the construction area and created space pictures using shiny and dark materials.

"I want to be a scientist like Mae Jemison" Isabella

"She was a doctor too... an astronaut and a doctor!" Bertie

"I think it is hot on space because it's closer to the sun" Dexter
